> WEB CHANGE TRACKING
PROBLEM #13

"Whoever said
'Change is good,'
never managed a Website!"

WHOEVER SAID
 "CHANGE IS GOOD" never managed a Website—

for in the interactive environment there's so darn much of it. Site navigation and design changes. Requests for new content. Broken links that need correcting. And every day a new batch of them, adding to the mountain of change requests already on your desk falling through the cracks.

IF YOU'RE feeling buried, invest in PVCS Tracker™ from MERANT, the industry's leading change and issue management solution.

Tracker thoroughly manages Web change requests from initial request to resolution. Along the way, it automatically communicates change status to team members until the requests are taken care of. Tracker even makes it easy for your team members to prioritize tasks, identify their responsibilities and review the queue of issues, all without spending hours in meetings.

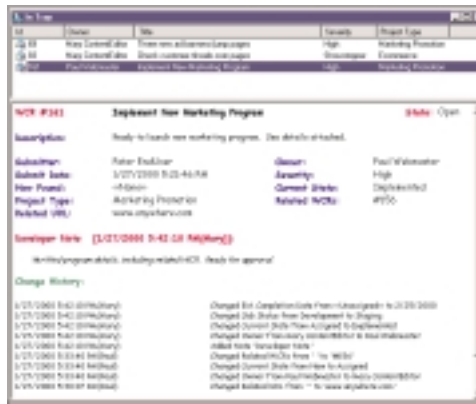

CAPTURING A WEB CHANGE REQUEST

AND THERE'S MORE. "PVCS Tracker allows us to implement best-in-class development practices, which are absolutely essential to the successful, rapid deployment of the e-commerce Web sites we are building for clients and for our company," said OneSoft's Quality Assurance Manager, Roger Watts.

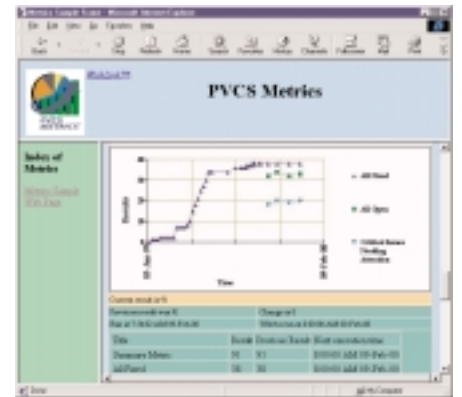

If you've got no time for more changes, then change the way you're managing them. Visit us on the Web at www.merant.com/wcm today. There are demos in our CyberTheater to take advantage of as well as freebies to request, such as an evaluation CD and a guidebook we call "A New Approach to Managing Web Change." Together, they'll change your life. And that's a good thing indeed.
